1 次の英文を読んで、後の問に答えなさい。

American people generally want to invite others to their home and to be invited by others more than Japanese do. American women go out to do volunteer work or meet other people in order to make friends with them.

One day a Japanese couple was invited to their friend's house in New York. They were looking forward to this visit very much because ①(the first time / visit / it was / to / for them) an American family.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown were waiting for this Japanese couple. When they came to their house, Mr. Brown took them to all the rooms in his house and showed every picture and decoration in those rooms. When they were walking around the house, the Japanese couple saw many things ②(leave) in the wrong place here and there. Mr. Brown didn't mind such things at all and talked proudly about the pictures hanging on the wall.

Two weeks later, the Japanese couple invited Mr. and Mrs. Brown to their house to eat dinner together. They went into the living room that was cleaned beautifully and looked so nice. Everything in the living room was perfect. They spent the whole evening in the living room and ate dinner and talked about many things together. They had a good time there. But they were never taken to other rooms in the house.

In this way American people have an open mind to other people, but Japanese people want to keep everything secret to others. My American friend was ③(surprise) very much to know this kind of Japanese way of thinking. He has a Japanese friend ④(live) in the next town. They ⑤(have known) each other for about ten years. He happened to see the Japanese friend walking with a baby in his arms. The Japanese friend didn't tell him about the new baby at all!
