A few weeks later, though most of her friends decided which club to join, Eri was still worried about it. Then, a girl came to Eri's classroom to see her. Her name was Yumi and she was in the third grade. They were teammates in junior high school, so she persuaded* Eri to join the swimming club. Yumi said, "Eri, you should join our club. Actually, we cannot take part in a relay* in the city tournament because our club has only three members. If you join us, our team will win! I need your help." Eri got more worried ②to hear Yumi's words. She knew that Yumi wanted to take part in a relay and win a (A). Also, it was clear that Yumi's dream would not ③() () without Eri's entry*. (い)

When she came home, Eri asked her mother ④what she should do. Her mother listened to her and said, "You should do ⑤(the thing / to / you / do / want). I know you love swimming and practiced very hard. So, you don't have to worry about anything." Her mother's words gave Eri much confidence* in swimming. (う) Finally, Eri decided to join the swimming club and to swim in the relay.

⑥Eri's entry made Yumi and the other teammates happy, and they welcomed* Eri. After that, they practiced hard together for winning. There were only four members in the club, but it was the best team for Eri. This summer, they took part in the relay in the city tournament, and won the first (A). When the tournament was over, Eri thought that she could not continue to swim by herself, and decided to swim for the team until her graduation.
